

Why

becoming a success at

failing could be

the making of you?

Because:

To build new habits, you need to get comfortable failing.

The image features a white background with several abstract geometric elements. In the top left, there is a large, light gray curved shape. Below it, the text "What strategy can you follow?" is written in a bold, pink, sans-serif font. To the left of the text is a solid red circle. At the bottom, there are two horizontal bars: a darker red one on top and a lighter pink one below it, both with a diagonal cut on their right ends. In the bottom right corner, there are faint, light gray curved lines that suggest the presence of larger circles or arcs.

What strategy
can you follow?

01

Immunise
yourself
to failure!

02

Externalise
your commitment
so you have some accountability.

03

Let others know
what you have learned.

04

Keep track of your progress .

My 20 year long career
in interpreting and translating has opened doors to many interesting and famous people,
from film stars to world leaders
to religious deities.

It has certainly not all been standard corporate work.

I always feel so fortunate to have such a varied profession in which I am always discovering new industries, people and cultures, and can continue to grow and learn.
